

Khimsar

-Discover the undiscovered

Duration-2 Nights / 3 Days

Overview

- Perched on the edge of the Great Thar Desert in the heart of rural India lies this unique 16th century fort that offers experience after exhilarating experience.
- This village nestles amidst sand dunes that seem to roll into eternity. Fortunately, access is only by jeep, camel or horseback. It is truly remote & rural.
- Hundreds of years of history unfold as you glance at its battle-scarred walls and stroll down its ramparts.
- The Khimsar Dunes Village nestles amidst sand dunes that seem to roll into eternity.
- November to February are the best months to visit Khimsar. Nagaur Festival is celebrated between the month of January and February, every year and this is the time when most of the tourists come to the town.

How to get there

- By Rail-Jodhpur is the nearest rail head. Jodhpur is linked to various centres in the region by express and passenger trains. Another smaller stop is Nagaur Railway Station which is 40kms from Khimsar.
- By Air-The nearest airport is in Jodhpur, around 92 km away. It is connected by regular flights to New Delhi, Mumbai and Jaipur.
- By Road- Highways connect Khimsar with other cities and towns in Rajasthan. Khimsar lies on the Jodhpur-Nagaur-Bikaner Highway.

Places to visit

Nagaur Fort- 47.1kms(1 hr)

- Was originally built by the Nagavanshi clan (hence the name that means 'Fort of the Hooded Cobra'!)
- The central courtyards, which had fountains, gardens and pools spread all over.

Panchla Black Buck Safari-17kms(20 min)

- The Panchala Black buck reserve is home to three species of antelope- the Blackbuck, Chinkara and Bluebull.
- A jeep safari could be arranged, followed by tea at the Khimsar Dunes Village.

Osian - 65kms

- This place is known by another name which is Khajuraho of Rajasthan because of its various temples.
- There are about 18 shrines in the group out of which the famous ones include the Sachiya Mata temple, the Sun Temple and the main Jain Temple which is built in dedication of Mahavira. These temples attract tourists by their grace and beautiful work of art.
